

Find out what a typical day-in-the-life is like for Daniel.

What is a typical day in your life at Bank of America?

5:30 – 6:00 AM: Arrive at desk and review overnight research publications. Prepare and send externally an early email that highlights relevant healthcare research reports.

6:00 – 7:00 AM: Check email and news articles and prepare the comprehensive morning healthcare sales email. Send email internally to the healthcare team.

7:00 – 8:30 AM: Listen to morning equity research call & participate in Q&A with healthcare analysts. Review and edit morning healthcare sales email. Send out morning healthcare sales email externally.

8:30 – 10:00 AM: Make phone calls and send IMs to clients to discuss relevant overnight events, trading flows and research ideas.

10:00 – Noon: Work on week ahead, read research reports and take care of client meeting arrangements. Work on team projects for the healthcare specialty sales desk.

12:30 – 2:00 PM: Attend client meetings and participate in strategy calls and updates.

2:00 – 4:00 PM: Work alongside traders to provide market depth and color to clients.

4:00 – 5:30 PM: Listen to earnings conference calls and prepare materials for the upcoming day. Answer final emails of the evening.

What is your current assignment and primary responsibilities?

I am currently an analyst on the Healthcare Specialty Sales desk within Global Equities. My primary responsibility is the coverage of healthcare oriented clients and the support of two senior salespeople.

Daniel
Analyst
Global Sales & Trading Analyst Program
New York, NY

Education
Undergrad – Cornell University
Degree – B.S in Policy Analysis & Management