

What attracted you to Bank of America?

“A great working culture, where everyone is prepared to help and support you.”

What is your current assignment and primary responsibilities?

I work on the Healthcare team, covering 13 companies across a broad variety of sub-sectors. My job entails four parts: meeting with covered (and peer) company executive management in order to discuss company/industry strategy and performance; modeling my sentiment performance into a forecast; writing research notes to depict my investment case on the company, i.e. whether to buy or sell it; and meeting with investors to convince them to follow our recommendations.

What is the most challenging part of your job?

The most challenging part of my job is earnings season, when companies report first thing in the morning (Central European Time), and I have to quickly assess the implications for the company, adjust my model to reflect them, write a research note on my sentiments and then speak to a host of investors over what the impact will be on share price. The day starts early and ends late.

What attracted you to Bank of America?

The people. A great working culture, where everyone is prepared to help and support you, whether that means staying late at work or at a nearby watering hole.

What is the best thing about living and working in your location?

London is the center of the world. Whether you love it or not, you can't dislike a two hour trip on weekends to go skiing in Switzerland or sunning in Spain.

Describe your experience and the value of your experience in the summer intern programme.

The internship experience was very valuable – it's a little snippet of what your work life is going to be.

Andrew
Associate
Research Associate Programme
London

Education
University – Columbia, BA English & Creative Writing
Post-Graduate – London Business School, MBA