

What advice would you give to someone considering an opportunity with Bank of America?

“Make a list of the things that are most important to you in a job.”

What is your current assignment and primary responsibilities?

Throughout the past two years of the Corporate Audit Management Program (CAMP), I have had the opportunity to work on four Audit teams: GWIM Technology, Enterprise Compliance and Risk Mgt (ECARM), Finance and Global Markets. Currently, I am working on the Global Markets team. My principle responsibility on the team is first and foremost to understand the business—management, products and services, processes, finances and to identify risk. Overall, my principle responsibilities include audit execution, identifying risk/reward trade-offs, issues management and clear communication.

What is the most challenging aspect of your job?

The most challenging part of my job is balancing a wide array of assignments. At any given point, I can be working on one or two audits, SOX testing, issues management, Six Sigma training and helping to lead the Corporate Audit United Way golf tournament. However, the most challenging part of my job is also the most exciting.

What attracted you to Bank of America?

Bank of America allows me to grow both personally and professionally. Bank of America gave me the opportunity straight out of college to join a program that allows me to find the right job for my expertise and that I am passionate about. I remain at Bank of America because I see the potential for growth.

What is the best thing about living and working in your location?

The best thing about living and working in my location is that I love Charlotte! I may be a bit biased since I have lived in Charlotte my entire life, but I really think it is a great city for young professionals. Charlotte is located only two hours from the mountains for skiing and hiking and three hours from both North and South Carolina beaches.

What advice would you give to someone considering an opportunity at Bank of America?

Someone considering an opportunity at Bank of America has already made the right decision by looking at a company with significant growth potential and opportunities for a long career. I would encourage this individual to make a list of the things that are most important to them in a job (i.e. responsibility, work/life balance, ability to move up within their Line of Business, professional certification, etc.) and discuss these items with their future manager.

Laura

Analyst
Corporate Audit Management Program
Charlotte, NC

Education

Undergrad – North Carolina State University
Major – Business Management, Concentration: Finance