

What advice would you give to someone considering an opportunity with Bank of America?

“Make sure you fully research the position you are applying for.”

What is your current assignment and primary responsibilities?

As an analyst on the UK Investment Banking team, I am primarily involved in providing advice to UK corporate clients in relation to financing and M&A opportunities. My day-to-day personal responsibilities involve financial modelling, preparing presentations for pitches, going to client meetings and deal execution and management. Our clients work in a variety of sectors, covering an entire spectrum from retail and real estate to E&P and financial institutions.

What was the best project you worked on?

I was involved in a sell-side M&A transaction for a public oil exploration and development company. The whole process took about 6 months and it was really rewarding to be an integral part of the team. We also encountered a number of different issues during the process, especially in light of the turbulent economic climate, and it was interesting to be involved in the resolution of the problems.

I remain here because...?

I am continually learning new things and find what I am doing is still rewarding.

What advice would you give to someone considering an opportunity at Bank of America?

Make sure you fully research the position you are applying for. Get some relevant experience. Make the most of recruitment events so you can really match your interests to the available positions and give yourself the best opportunity to stand out in the interview process.

Melissa
Analyst
Corporate and Investment Banking Analyst Programme
London

Education
Undergrad – Cambridge University, Geography